Partnership

JIP Engineering Support entered into a strategic partnership with FTESI Global Private Limited from India in May 2024, FTESI is an engineering firm that, with their knowledge and experience, is able to handle and solve various engineering issues together with JIP Engineering Support. The working relationship with FTESI Global Private Limited was established more than ten years ago and has led to many successful solutions within engineering issues over the years. In recent years, the collaboration has developed into a transparent and trust-based relationship, which has shown that India is a country with very highly skilled professionals with knowledge that is less and less available within the Netherlands and Europe. Partly due to the long-term cooperation, it has proven to be a formality to come to a strategic partnership with each other. From this strategic partnership, JIP Engineering Support and FTESI will focus on smaller projects, where the needs of the customer and the delivery of quality are central.
